

Making higher education more inclusive

The rapid expansion of higher education in the past two decades, as well as the growing diversity of providers and technological models for delivering education, have made higher education accessible to more students globally. Yet significant barriers remain for many vulnerable groups. A better understanding of inequality as well as new paradigms, strategies and a renewed political will for 'leaving no one behind' are required. Structural equity policies at all levels throughout the education system, as well as extraordinary measures when needed, should ensure that students from any background with the potential to succeed are fully integrated with equal opportunities into higher education.

Create per group:

a recommendation how we can improve inclusion in higher education

Step two

Best practices of 'Inclusion' (examples from your organisation)

Step four

Create your own solution. This will be your recommendation to make higher education more inclusive.

Step one

What does 'Inclusion' mean for you?

Step three

What do you think is missing? Or can be improved?

Step five

Present your solution in a creative way.

Co-funded by the Erasmus+ Programme of the European Union